HOP CROPS SHORT.

A Report From An Inspection of Twenty-Eight Marion County Yards

You can never tell what a hop crop is until you have it in the bale.

Friday Fred Searles, of Louis R. Searles and Co., hop merchants in this city took a drive with E. C. Hansen the livestockman to 28 different hop yards in the county, going north visiting the various yards of importance. The consensus of opinion of the proprietors of the twenty-eight yards visited are summed up as follows: There will be about 60 per cent of a full yield of hops and the acreage will not be as large as it was two years ago. This shortage is accounted for by the fact that two years ago a large number of yards were plowed up and but few have been replaced and those that have are not yet in condition to yield a full crop. The hop growers are all feeling encouraged and many are preparing to put in more hops.

The general average of stand is about equal to that of last year.

The vermin proposition was thoroughly looked into and out of the 28 yards visited only two were seriously afflicted with lice, and they were very bad, being considered practically worthless.

Among the various yards visited there was no talk as to price to be paid to pickers, but some few were registering their pickers and promising to pay the going price. Spraying was being followed up and many of the yards visited had no lice whatever. All in all the prospect is good for a fine grade of hops.

None were found that were contracting their hops yet a few old contracts were in force.

A hop contract was yesterday filed in the office of County Clerk W. W. Hall. By its terms W. F. Davidson, of Champe, agrees to deliver to A. Lehman & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, at Aurora, 8,000 pounds of hops, the consideration being 12 1/2 cents. The contract provides that, in addition to the $900 paid to the grantor on the signing of the agreement 4 1/2 cents per pound shall be paid on September 1, and the remainder of the purchase price upon delivery of the crop, at Aurora.

Going to General Conference.

THE MAGERS CASE.

The Defense Takes Exceptions to McLauchlan's Testimony.

The appeal to the supreme court in the Magers murder case has been perfected by filing the transcript. In the bill of exceptions the admission of testimony of D. McLauchlan, chief of police in Portland, will be urged as an error. McLauchlan was called as a witness for the purpose of showing what Magers had said in answer to questions asked him while he was in jail in Portland.

Counsel for the defense claims that it should have been allowed to examine the witness as to the source of his information, and whether he was testifying from recollection exclusively, before the state proceeded with the direct examination.

The court ruled that the counsel for defendant could not examine the witness until after the direct examination. The court having made this ruling, the witness was allowed to testify, and on cross examination it was shown that he relied to some extent upon the extended notes taken by a stenographer, and that the notes assisted him in refreshing his memory.

The defense asked the court to direct the jury not to consider Mr. McLauchlan's testimony as evidence, upon the ground that it appeared from cross-examination that his recollection was supported in part at least by the extended notes, which were not produced in court.

Another point relied upon by the defense is thus stated in the bill of exceptions:

After the jury had retired to consider their verdict, W. H. Holmes, one of the defendants' counsel, addressing the court, said: "I think it would be the duty of the court in a case of this kind to instruct the jury of its motion that the fact of the defendant not testifying in his own behalf should not be taken as a circumstance against him" and for that reason he excepted to the omission of the court to charge the jury on that point, but no request was made to have the jury recalled for instructions on that point, or any other.

The bill of exceptions also contains copies of the affidavits offered in support of the motion for a new trial.
